Private Label

Why Private Label?

Private labeling with Promising Goods offers an array of advantages which have made it popular with our clientele. One of the many benefits of private labeling is agility in tweaking products to adapt to a shift in their customers' behavior. Not only are private label customers able to adapt more rapidly, they also have more control over production. From start to finish, we listen to the customers' requirements. They can define ingredients or components. They can insist upon precise specs, down to things as fundamental as a product's color or shape. In addition, our customers are in charge of the entire supply chain. They set and control production costs to ensure the most profitable pricing.

Products are made in a way that ensures the healthiest ultimate margins.

With private label products, it's your company, not an outside branded product, which customers come to love. Private label products and their packaging bear your own name and branding, with its perceived superiority.

What we offer?

As a contract manufacturing company, Promising Goods offers a full line of confectionery and the process walk-through. This includes, but is not limited to, coming up with value-added packaging that makes the product stand out on the shelf, altering ingredients to reach the desired product, customizing molds and labels that draw the consumers' attention to our customers' brand, taking care of customs clearance, and delivering orders right to our customers' warehouses.

Our job is not done there! We believe in forming partnerships rather than one-time transactions. We solicit our customers' feedback throughout the creation of a private label product. Our goal is your ultimate satisfaction, and a product aligned with current market trends.

So what makes us stand out from the crowd? Put simply, it's our branding ability.
